

I strongly encourage the commission to NOT allow the use of cell phones onboard the aircraft. In the already confined and very public nature of air travel, with all sorts of behaviors impacting the travel experience, the one thing no one needs is to hear someone yammering on and on into a cell phone. It will be a breeding ground for more impolite and rude behavior which is already the norm in the sorry state of airline travel. Anyone can go without the use of their cell phone for a few hours and still be a productive employee, no matter what their occupation. Thank you for your time.

Randy Larsen